Chapter 7 Paper

one page genre-mashing synopsis

A tragic love story between two star-crossed transgender lovers in an open relationship whose families hate each other during a time of galactic space civil-warfare = A war film about an advanced LGBT romance in Space

Futuristic sci-fi advanced LGBT romance film during a time of war in space. He's a she, and she's a he, and both belong to families on opposite sides of a war. Both have their own mistresses, masters, and exes. After seeing other people within an open relationship for several years, they decide to settle down with each other in marriage. While no laws prohibit such events, their political and colonial backgrounds conflict with their unique relationship together. The year is 3047 and human beings have colonized Mars as Earth's natural resources have been depleted leaving the planet heavily unstable and unable to support human life resulting in a solar systemic change in gravitational orbits. With space being the final frontier, different colonies battle for control of Mars. Little do the martians know, an ancient and powerful alien threat is coming to respond to the disturbance in the milky way galaxy.
