Have you ever fallen in love with someone whilst living a double life? That's exactly the case in The Graveyard, one couple, John and Linda, have been highschool sweethearts for thirty years and are expecting a baby boy.

After earning a promotion from his boss, John and his family are moved out to Dallas Tx to stay at his new position which also happens to be where John was born. Unbeknownst to Linda, John is secretly a drug dealer, which he has been doing ever since they met.

After a few weeks of getting settled in their new house, Linda goes out to find some nice hotspots since she is not native to Texas, John Offers to go with her, but is interrupted by a phone call. Four hours go by and John hasn't heard from Linda. He decided to track her location on his Iphone. He finds her dead in an ally with a note attached saying "Your fault".

John then decides to go on a full on man hut for the people who killed his wife and unborn child, with a military as well as Hapkido background, he use all of the skills he has acquired over the years to assist him in finding justice for his wife and unborn child's murder.
