

My film from what I've gathered and estimated, would be around five-hundred dollars for a week of shooting and editing. My mentor and I are gonna work together on it and I would be editing it at the production offices. Never ending starts jack a regular, day to day dude that one night has a dream that he kills his wife and it repeats itself. This story came about when I was driving home and it came to me out of nowhere.

It took me almost three months to finish the script. The script process for was tough, I'm not as talented as the script writers but I managed and fingered it out. Script writing is hard but it's what I love doing and what I'm passionate about. We got three actors, Jose aka Image is an up and coming actor who said he would do the short for free, three days, Andy has experience in the industry, three-hundred dollars, three days and Kyle would be one-hundred for three days.

Locations, we got locked all locations, the owners said yes and we wouldn't be paying anything that's good and editing I would be using the production software, Adobe Premiere Pro. That's all. Plus food and drinks.
