

Chapter 15 - Directing One: Pre-Production - Quiz

Ramiro Hernandez 7/28/2016

1. What is contained in a director's workbook?

It contains everything the director's need to begin filming. This is called pre-production, which are proper procedures step by step that helps the director, producer and the rest of the team know ahead of time. Also, the script is also contained here with all kinds of shots scenes illustrated and visualized the storyboard representing how each scene needs to be view by the director.

2. What does it mean to "line the shooting script?"

This is very essential to filming because it helps organize each line of the scene so the shooting will be taken accordingly. Master shot begins with the first scene and goes all the way until the project is complete. The medium shot begins from the half of the scene. Lining the scrip is basically how long the shots is going to be on the film.

3. What is the most important thing for a director to do before shooting has even started? What makes it vital to the process?

Preparation is the number one thing that each director needs to be. It is critical for the final completion of the movie film. Location and the right team is also crucial.